I loved this book!!! So many messages and even though it was written years ago, the material seemed so relative and relatable to today's times. It was my first book by this author but it won't be the last! Excellent job!!!!

Ashley Teagle says

E. Lynn Harris' books never fail to live up to a traditional romance story with a twist. I enjoyed this book, as I have enjoyed his others. I find the dialogue in his books is realistic and I feel like his characters are usually those that you may encounter in real life.

Readers who enjoy a book about love with a touch of unrealistic fantasy thrown in for good measure and a nice tidy ending will enjoy the feel good vibe of E. Lynn Harris' books.

E. Lynne Harris's A Love of My Own is the story of Zola Norwood, the attractive, ambitious editor-in-chief of Bling, Bling, a hot new magazine for young and hip African Americans. Having achieved success in her professional life, Zola embarks on a quest for true love. She makes clean breaks from her clandestine affairs with Davis McClinton, Bling, Bling's powerful owner, and Jabar, the seemingly simple yet undeniably sexy personal trainer at her club. Adding to the intrigue is Raymond Tyler Jr., whose relationship with his longtime partner, Trent, has just ended badly. In a search for refuge and rebirth, Raymond moves to New York and begins work as the CEO of Bling, Bling. As Zora and Raymond chart their own courses to love and personal fulfillment, Harris grapples with familiar themes like love, deception, family, and power. In a tale woven together by up-to-the-minute current events (the characters watch Denzel Washington and Halle Berry take home awards on Oscar night; Zora awakes to the news of pop star Aaliyah's tragic death).
