Demelza says

I'm still loving the Lumberjanes although I'm still trying to get my head around the new art style. I preferred the old one and I just really am not a fan of the new art. I liked how in this issue it is explored how someone can feel like they're being so helpful but a core part of why they're being helpful is based on selfish reasons. I find that this happens a lot in day to day life and it is great that it is looked at in #19. I just wish the art style would change again. It just isn't working for me, especially the faces of the girls. My favourite part of #19 I think is how much Jen has just accepted all the ridiculous stuff that is thrown at them now, and is taking sea serpents and mermaids in her stride.

I'm still not okay with the new artwork... sigh

April tries to solve Harlow's problem and everything blows.

"I don't want to die confused!"

Sara (A Gingerly Review) says

Sad to say that was probably my least favorite of all I have read so far. :(

SMLauri says

¡Ay April la que has armado! ????

Brittany says

Still not digging the new art style, but also not super fascinated with this story arc. I'm glad we got more insight into April's character, at least, but other than that (which was really just a page of conversation amidst the other girls), it doesn't feel like much happened in this issue. The writing and art is just not up to par with the past stuff so far, but I'm not giving up on this series!

Rainey says

I'm trying not to compare and contrast, but I really miss the original artwork.

Oh April, you tried to help but you seem to of made things 100x worse.. I'm really enjoying the mermaid storyline but the artwork is a little meh in this issue.

Darinda says

Read in Lumberjanes, Vol. 5: Band Together.

#19: Ensemble Assemble! Badge - April gets in over her head with helping the mermaids.

A fun and entertaining series.

Bridgette says

Mermaids are not my thing, so I'm not enjoying this as much as some of the other issues. It's nice to see April doing something on her own, but I like it much better when all the girls work together. I'm still adjusting to the new art style (which I'm not a huge fan of it right now), but I'm hopeful this arc will get better for me.

Carlos De Eguiluz says

La calidad bajó muchísimo, y están extendiendo algo que no deberían extender.

Dusti Hargis says

The Babysitter's Club references and the references to how unrealistic everything is??? I love it

Hayley says

Really liking the mermaid storyline!

Sarra says

Dear Lumberjanes crew,
PLEASE make "The Mermaid Lemonade Stand" series real. PLEASE.

For the record: I love this issue and this arc just as much as I've loved previous issues and arcs. The change in artwork doesn't bother me (and the endless moaning about it is boring and juvenile), and riot grrrl mermaid musicians with friendships to the max are the epitome of everything good.

Courtney says

Love this cover it's beautiful.

I gave this issue higher marks because of the way it addressed April's character, and how her actions impacted the other girls. However, I found the rest of the story unremarkable, which is disappointing after the high levels of creativity shown in the other issues.
