I was a little nervous going into this. Especially since it's set in the mountains I grew up in. However it did not disappoint. I loved the suspense and romance. How there was a perfect amount of each. Although I guessed the "big" plot twist, it was still a really fun read. Definitely recommend and plan on picking up the others in this series.

Liz Madison witnessed a mob slaying and also saw her best friend get killed. She is the only witness who can put Daniel Shaw at the scene so she has been put in a safe place. She is on a guest ranch owned by an ex-police officer. She is also being guarded by an FBI agent, although she doesn't know it yet. Another officer is on the way to help protect her. Liz wants to do what is right but wants it to get over with. She is convinced God is with her at all times and will keep her safe if that is His will.

Gabriel Decker, FBI, has come to guard Liz and before he even gets to the guest ranch, is able to save her life at the town theater. She was accosted at her car and he came out just in time. He follows her back to the guest ranch where he is to be a guest. He has chosen not to tell her he is an agent.

Can Gabriel protect Liz from danger while protecting his heart? Can just being with Liz and watching her Faith bring him comfort?
