She's the ugly duckling in a family of swans. But Varna Lund is determined to live a life that matters.

Ridiculed by the young men of her village, Varna vows she'll become the finest healer in the land. The skills she's learned from her ancient mentor prove vital when she encounters Erik Stahl, a young soldier who deserted the battlefield to carry an injured friend to safety. Aided by her sister Gerda, she cares for the soldiers in secret.

When betrayal catapults the four young people into life on the run, Varna encounters her former mentor—now revealed as the sorcerer, Sten Rask. Seeking an enchanted mirror that offers unlimited power, Rask appears determined to seduce Varna to his side.

To protect their country, Varna and her companions form an alliance with a former Snow Queen, a scholar, and an enchantress. But when Rask tempts her with beauty and power, Varna's heart becomes a battlefield. Caught between loyalty to her companions and a man whose kisses ignite a fire on her lips, Varna must choose—embrace her own desires, or fight for a society that's always spurned her.

4.5 Stars!

Scepter of Fire was a really fascinating novel. It was filled with adventure, magic and romance. I enjoyed the plot of the novel and the characters.

I liked Varna because even though she isn't really beautiful that never stopped her from being kind. She would also do anything to protect those she loves. Erik and Anders were also a nice addition, both being brave and strong-willed. It was also great to see Gerda, Thyra, Kai, Luki, Bae and Sephia again!

Scepter of Fire was a great read and recommended to fans of fantasy!

This was a really good story. Second book in the series. It continues the story from the first book. A retelling of "The Ugly Duckling". Full of action. The main character, Varna, is a healer. Very plain in looks. Her second mentor, Sten Rask, is a sorcerer, unknown to Varna. He offers Varna beauty and power. Varna has a war going on inside her. What will Varna do? Looking forward to the next book!
