Really interesting read, especially coming into the end of 2016, whether or not you believe any of it.

Great book. Much of the information in this book takes on the appearance of well manicured notes, but I appreciate the fact that the author took the time to assemble the information so another researcher can come along and piece together even more of the puzzle. I used one such piece of 'information' in my new book 'Back Upright.' So thanks Tom! Keep up the research, critical thinking, and polished writing!

Judah!

Fascinating and troubling research...I found a reading list of probably another 50 books cited that I really want to dig into now. It's hard to fathom how dark our nation's history truly is. If you are interested in Freemasonry and their "new world order" agenda, this book will shine more light on these subjects than you can find in any other publication.

Wm. Scott Conway says

Great addition and revision to Apollyon Rising 2012. Typical Tom Horn style writing of firing data points at the reader in machine gun fashion.

Just read slow to guarantee maximum absorption and retention.

Appears very well researched but seems a little to hard to really get my head around. Not convinced that all of his facts point in the same direction.

I have read other books by Thomas Horn and have listened to many of his interviews.

His work is well researched but written in an almost pedantic style, with some sentences 10 lines long. I don't mind long sentences but not when there is more than one idea in a sentence and it can easily be broken up into 2 sentences. The excessive use of compound complex sentences with multiple prepositional phrases as modifiers and with unclear antecedents for pronouns causes confusion and definitely slows down the reader.

I gave this book a rating of 3 because it had only one chapter to answer the question of 2016 and prophesied events. It sadly did not answer its question very well: Did Something Begin in the Year 2012 That Will Reach Its Apex in 2016?

It simply lists many prophecies from sources as diverse (and possibly inaccurate) as ancient pagan religions, the Catholic Church, fundamentalist Christians, Masons, Mormons and others.

If you are a fundamentalist Christian, you would probably not have much confidence in prophecies from most of the above sources. If you are anxiously watching the catastrophic and mind-boggling world changes right now in climate, geography, societal values, genetics, robotics, artificial intelligence and nanotechnology, then you might consider the unlikely probability that all of these unrelated sources would predict serious events occurring in 2012 with an apex in 2016.

However, these prophecies do not really help because there are only guesses about what could happen in 2016.

This book was published in 2013, after Dec 21/12 when predictions of disaster at the end of the Mayan calendar did not seem to come to pass.

For the record, I said that the end of the Mayan calendar simply indicated a return of the solar system to a position of 26,000 years ago where all the planets were aligned and the "counting" would start again. It would not necessarily indicate disaster or the end of the world. It is the same with us as we mark the end of the year by starting again at January 1 the next year. We do not panic because we have run out of days on our calendar. We simply start counting again from Day 1.

I feel that Tom Horn's predictions that 2016 could be the mid-Tribulation with the return of Christ in 2019 are not going to happen, simply because I do not believe that we entered the Tribulation in 2012 or 2013. I also believe that the rapture cannot occur until the gospel is preached to the entire world and I do not think this is a goal that can be reached in the next 6 years. There are still unreached people groups in the world. And there are actually... believe it or not... American citizens who have never seen a Bible, gone into a church, or seen the power of God demonstrated. However, I could be wrong about 2012/2016/2019.

I do believe that very significant events concerning Israel, in particular an expansion of her territory after being attacked in a significant war, will occur during the lunar eclipse tetrad and the solar eclipses of 2014 and 2015. Other authors describe the relationship of tetrads and Israel land expansion much more thoroughly than Tom Horn.

I do not pretend to be an expert in these areas. But I am cautious especially in areas of prophecy. These four blood moons were supposed to occur on Biblical feast days. As a result, some Christian authors felt that there should be significant events occurring in Israel during this tetrad. The projected war with subsequent land expansion did not occur during these four lunar eclipses.

However, I did read from a rabbi that the Jewish calendar was changed by one day during this time because there was a significant cloud cover that prevented them from seeing the sliver of the new moon over Jerusalem that was used to date the start of the new month from which the feast days were determined. He was discussing the Jewish calendar but not any tetrads. I am simply putting this information together and thinking that probably in God's eyes, this was not actually a tetrad of lunar eclipses falling on feast days. According to this information, at least one lunar eclipse did not occur on a feast day.

There are at least 2 different Jewish calendars, one which actually follows the instructions given by God and one which is more astronomical and does not look for the actual physical observation of the new moon over Jerusalem. God already knew in advance about this cloud cover and the inability to view the new moon when it was expected. By the next month, without a cloud cover, the calendar would be back on track again because the new moon would be able to be observed at the exact time that it was "waxing". This is an interesting possibility.

This might not be significant to most people, but Feast Days are appointed times when God meets with His people. So to Jewish and Messianic Jewish congregations, the exact day of this festival is important. And if it is dated by the physical observation of the new moon rather than by counting days, then people following the wrong method would miss that appointed time with God. I think there is a danger when Christians pick up a theme that seems logical and correct but do not have enough background to make correct interpretations about it. This is one example. However, as I said, I do not have a lot of background in prophecy and am just learning. I am a fundamental Christian with no Jewish roots and no experience with Messianic Jewish congregations. I am merely introducing this information to show that maybe we do not know enough about some of these topics to make an informed conclusion.)

However, I was disappointed in this book because so much of it was a repetition of previous books. I felt that I spent most of my time rereading information.

Tom Horn's books wake people up to the dangers of:

- 1) transhumanism and super soldiers,
- 2) a genetic retrovirus that would change people's DNA (the Mark of the Beast) and make it impossible for them to spend eternity with God because they would no longer have human DNA,
- 3) the occult foundation of the US government and buildings,
- 4) the control of the US government by hidden powers,
- 5) the role of the Vatican in the final one-world government and even
- 6) the future disclosure of UFO's and aliens by major countries.

His research is accurate and thorough; his insights are powerful. A person who does not know much of the information in his books is going to be easily deceived by the AntiChrist. He has one of the best descriptions I have ever read of the methods by which the AntiChrist will appeal to the masses and deceive even Christians, who will have absolutely no idea that this man who promises solutions to save the world is actually the Anti-Christ. I often wondered how this could happen as the Bible warns us that there would be an end-time deception that, if it were possible, would deceive even the elect. As I read his description, I could see it happening even in fundamentalist Christian churches in the US.

This review is not meant to be frightening. Unusual things are happening in the world. As Christians, when we see these things happening, we are actually told to look up and rejoice because we will soon be out of here. We are to live every day as if it is our last but plan every day as if we will have decades more. We are to occupy until Jesus comes. But we need to be educated so that these things do not take us by surprise and we are able to make wise decisions.

Tom Horn gives this kind of confidence. His books are not sensational or fear-mongering or negative. But he deals with threats to the world of which most people are ignorant. As a result, he goes to great lengths to give detailed research with endless footnotes, consulting more than just Christian sources. If you don't know about these issues that will certainly impact your life (whether or not Jesus returns in the next few years), you will benefit by reading his earlier books more than by reading this one.

A most intriguing and insightful read!

I have enjoyed all of Tom Horn's books. Zenith 2016 brings together several key concepts that have been the subjects of passed books. I enjoy the way he documents his sources and the chapters build upon one another.

I find most of the content in Horn's books to be verifiable and I don't question his content; however, I think it is needless for him to create an air of sensationalism or fear or impending doom by giving deadline dates. Could he be right, of course, but he could also be wrong, which gives the impression of no credibility. However, his content, much of which I've verified through his and other sources, is impeccable. If anyone comes across any misleading information, please share with me. To date, I've not come across any. I think Bible verse support/interpretation is relevant as well. Would love to hear arguments, if any.

ZENITH 2015 by Thomas Horn amazed me. The information found in this Christian non-fiction book was not only interesting, it was eye opening, detailing what might soon happen in the world. Now, I want to read it all over again.

I give it five stars.

A very interesting book with a lot of intense details about what the author believes is the founding of our country and the true motives behind it. I appreciate the author's depth and quality of research. There were some dry moments in the book where I felt the author did too much in trying to explain things which made it a bit dull and tedious to read at times. However, I did get a lot out of it. Whether you believe in this stuff or not, it's still interesting to read about. I appreciate Thomas Horn's research and insights and may check out his other books.

This blows your mind in a cryptic and familiar hint of what we knew and forgot but better remember quick!

I chose this rating because this is the first book to put all the hints together and show how it all fits. And it really makes sense. It's what you know but your over rational mind blurs it out to preserve your ignorance. Because as Satin says, Ignorance is bliss. (For a time)

Lori says

A lot of great facts to know, and to research in other books. Good read, one that you can skim through certain parts and still keep going!
