it was amazing,garicia is really brilliant;
i like the way he justified the title,the elements he used like 'a heart pierced by an arrow' for loneliness,rose for longing for love,donkey for a name...
i really liked it :)

The themes of political shallowness, insincerity, mortality, and generally the dark side of humanity are done very well in this short story. The story and characterization are excellently crafted. However, I don't enjoy it due to the way the poor girl in this story is used. Surely the fact that she has no agency is part of the point, but it's still very depressing. Our whole (mostly female) literature class had a hard time liking this because of that issue, and it was annoying that our male professor didn't seem to be as troubled by it as we were. I do believe the story has some merit, but that aspect of it is pretty dated and makes me question why this story in particular was chosen to be taught. Although that is an experience independent of the story, of course, so I have tried not to let that color my rating.

Excellent short story. Marquez explores the baser human emotions such as desire, lust, frustration, revenge, in less than 10 pages. To be able to understand solitude and loneliness, one must give in to it and somewhere Marquez has managed to illustrate the beauty of it in almost every piece he has written. Short, loaded and a delightful read.

Marquez, benim en sevdi?im yazar. Toplumsal gerçekleri büyülü-fantastik ö?elerle-benzetmelerle anlatmas?, di?er yazarlardan ay?r?yor Marquez. Bu kitab?nda da, yoksullu?u, yolsuzlu?u, kimsesizli?i-bir ba??na b?rak?lm??l??, çaresizli?i anlat?yor k?sa öykülerle. Latin Amerikan?n çaresiz, kimsesiz insanlar?n?n öyküleridir bu kitapta okuyacaklar?n?z.

Leí éste cuento corto por la canción del maestro Rubén Blades "Laura Farina", que como obviamente habrán concluido, habla de éste cuento, me gustó mucho, ojalá Gabriel García Marquez hubiera ahondado más, creo que le pudo sacar mucho, mucho más. Los elementos de papel, siempre aparecen en su literatura, es increíble cómo te abraza la historia y en poco tiempo ya hueles a mar, aunque estés en tu cubículo de 1x1m. Muy recomendable.

Good enough to read, not good enough to pick up again. I prefer Borges.

Joselito Honestly and Brilliantly says

When he met the most beautiful girl in Rosal del Virrey, 19-year-old Laura Farina, Senator Onesimo

Sanchez had 6 months and 11 days left before his death by a fatal illness for which he was then suffering occasional pain. Yet being told by his doctor that he won't last till Christmas did not deter him from doing what he had been doing when death was but a remote possibility. He immersed himself in his political campaign, his usual circus of lies and empty promises, his false theatrics designed to attract votes, some little favors here and there all carefully publicized for maximum effect. The lovely Laura Farina was a gift by a poor widower with criminal background in exchanged for a long sought-for favor.

The title "Death Constant Beyond Love" seemingly mocks the ambitious claim of that famous sonnet by the Spanish Golden Age writer Quevedo (1580-1645) according to which there is "Love Constant Beyond Death." Here, Senator Onesimo Sanchez, in possibly the most lively, eros-filled moment in a man's existence--naked in bed with a young, beautiful woman (and most likely a virgin)--would find the need to close his eyes, and meet himself in the darkness, and shudder, and remember a passage in Marcus Aurelius's "Meditations":

"Remember that whether it's you or someone else, it won't be long before you'll be dead and it won't be long before your name won't even be left."

Marvelous excellence constant beyond death from my favorite Colombian novelist, Gabriel Jose de la Concordia Garcia Marquez.
