The Disneyland Quest Matt Ainsworth

15 year-old Dizzy Walker and his younger sister Ana are about to meet their mom's new boyfriend, Steve, and his son, Travis, for the first time. To make the introduction go smoothly, Steve offers to pay for Dizzy and his family to meet in Disneyland; Dizzy's favorite place in the world.

When they arrive at the theme park, they learn about a once in a lifetime treasure hunt called The Disneyland Quest. Clues are hidden throughout Disneyland, leading the quest participants to the combination of a vault set up on Main Street and the $250,000 prize inside.

Dizzy, Ana, and Travis must work together in a race against the clock, thousands of opponents, and the mysterious man in red who follows them throughout the quest. Friendship, perseverance, and trust are all put to the test in The Disneyland Quest.

Searching For Clues

Thank you for this engaging story about Dizzy, Ana and Travis in their search for clues to compete for a prize. I really enjoyed the fast-moving storyline and the different characters.

I loved it! You brought Disneyland alive.

You really had me hooked. I felt like I was there riding the rides and looking for the clues with the kids. Thanks for the chance to go along.

The quest in the book was fun, the characters were not very well defined, but the end of Travis' adventure was heartbreaking and unnecessary.

May I give this 10 stars instead of just five?

I deliberately took my time reading this, savoring the atmosphere. Like Dizzy Walker, I am a Disney-phile; my first visit was in 1955, opening year, though not on opening day. I was nine. The last time I visited was in 2003, when I was 57. I have lost very little of the wide-eyed wonder of my childhood self, though I have to rely on a motorized scooter now instead of running around on my own two feet.

Disneyland (Anaheim) is still one of my favorite places on Earth.

I plan on keeping this on my Kindle Fire and re-reading it frequently. Thank you, Matt Ainsworth, from the child that lives in each of us.

There were some continuity/editing problems. Dizzy's mom, Michelle, is referred to as "Megan" a few times, and Travis' mom, Linda, was called "Michelle" once. Commas were omitted, especially before names, and several times homophones ("sound-alike" words) were used in place of the proper word(s).

If you can't be at the parks, you've got to be reading about them!

I am no fan of ebooks or the kindle, reading for me will always involve a book but I am glad that ebooks have allowed tonnes of unknown authors to get their work out there. And because ebooks have been so popular its now easy for authors to self publish in paperback which is the bit I like!

I brought this because I am in love with everything Disney. I've only been to Disney World but I might be going to Disneyland, California next year. Now I've read a fair bit of fiction set in the parks and it really shines though when the author is a Disney fan themselves. This book had the magical touch. The Disneyland Quest was a fab idea. Disney take note! I wasn't very good at guessing the clues. I wouldn't have won the money but then my knowledge of Disneyland is not as great as my knowledge on WDW.

I loved the characters. You like Dizzy and Ana from the start. Travis, I thought was going to be a jerk but he was actually pretty cool. I liked the rivalry with the other team. And trying to figure out what the man in red was up to. I enjoyed following them all as they guessed the clues.

The only part I didn't think was very realistic was when you find out what Steve's dad had been up to. Would he have really done that to his son? He was really mean! I would have thought Steve's mum would have been more upset and angry about what happened but she seemed to take it a little too well for my liking. However this did not spoil my overall feelings for the book and I still walked away, having loved it. I will definitely be buying the next one come payday.

Mildly interesting, but for children

Cute idea, and as a big Disney fan I did like the quest riddles. But this was written for young children, and unfortunately with many typos, poor grammar, and zero character development.

My 10-year-old daughter read this to me and she absolutely loved it and would give it 5 stars! This is a fun read, especially if you love Disneyland! I enjoy it but am not a fanatic so there was some trivia that I was definitely not aware of. Dizzy, Travis and Ana work their way through the clues. There is a time limit and some of the groups are serious competition so the pressure is on. I was impressed with how well they worked together. Not everything goes their way but they are supportive of and kind to each other. We're going to start reading the second book right away and I'm glad to hear that there will even be a third!

It was cute because I love Disney but the writing was a bit simplistic.

Fun read

The book was fun, and the quest was interesting. The only flaws were several spelling errors. It distracts from the flow of the story.....

Great fun book for pre-teens, early teens, and the occasional adult like me who enjoys light adventures with kids leading the action. Any Disney fan will appreciate the Disneyland setting and the clues/solutions.

There are two additional books in the series. I may indulge in the second one in the near future; this one was good enough to move its sequel to near the top of the pile.

Cute little book about a Disneyland treasure hunt. Features a bunch of trivia in an entertaining way. Although, we don't really find out what happens to the main rival team. Their story in a loosely tied knot. Still, a good read for a Disney nut.

A fun read in the lead up to our family trip to Disneyland.

3.5 stars. I downloaded this as a free Kindle ebook and enjoyed following the kids on their Disney treasure hunt. I am not a Disneyland/World lover (I don't dislike it but am not dying to go either), but I liked reading about all the details of the rides and things. There were some typos but they weren't too distracting. Sometimes the details slowed things down, and I personally thought Dizzy was a strange name for a main character and expected it to mean something more at the end since Dizzy is so close to Disney. I liked that the clues made sense logically and were solved by children--It didn't make me feel like a complete idiot (like with David Vinci Code and its chronology). The audience is obviously children, and the book would make a fantastic TV movie on, say, the Disney Channel. :)
