Feeling good

It is nice to read a story that truly makes you yearn for a simple and happy time. This time is in the 1800s and you content being on the prairies with a lovely family. Your author takes you happily back there

Honestly

A very smooth storyline of blessings, love . Family, respect. The start of a combined family. You will like this

Barbara Lee Wood says

LOVE HAS NO BOUNDS

Abused women and children who in one case the Mother didn't want her own child, said the little girl was like a rock around her neck. Her mother who sold her body to any man felt the kid was a hindrance to the men who visited her. Little girl runs away and no one missed her..very sad.

The woman in this story had bad luck, misfortune all rolled up in one George Davenport, the cad, scoundrel who abandoned his family on the flat lands of Nebraska twenty miles from the nearest town and dang it, he did it in a snow storm.

If you've read any stories by this author the plot all deal with broken hearts, death of a wife or possibly a mail order bride left waiting at the stage drop off for her intended husband who mysteriously never shows. The endings are happy. I know you have to deal with realty, but there are some really mean spirited, black hearted individuals who care only about themselves and the narcissistic attitudes of both men and women. This author touches upon all negative energies that befalls mankind and how we coped with them.

I think everyone who reads this author's books will enjoy them..

George F. Sommers says

Very good

A recommended read, however, I do not understand why typos are permitted. I FIND TYPOS IN BOOKS TO BE NEEDLESS DISTRACTIONS. It seems authors could take time to do a review proof reading of their work.

Nancy Tarter says

Cute book

I just finished Scott's Bluff. It is the best story of all Mr Petit's books I have read. I liked it because there is not as much blood shed. The story was short and sweet and to the point. I really enjoyed it very much.

Masina Lane says

Rescue

After finding a woman and her children whose husband had abandoned in freezing weather, a rancher decided to save their lives if possible. A heart warming story about what happens next. Plenty of action and suspense. I highly recommend this author.

Crockett White says

Excellent Story

I love your writing. I don't like the inadvertent name changes and the added words here and there. When the plot is moving it is disconcerting to be forced to stop and figure out who this new person could possibly be.

Still love your writing.

Karen Mills says

A story of danger, fear, strength, chivalry, honor, and love. I won't write a spoiler, but the story revolves around damaged people rebuilding their lives. Characters are well developed, story kept me turning pages, and I've grown to love Petit's stories. He doesn't leave out details, doesn't bore you with minutiae, and finally ends his books with no unresolved issues and a feeling of completion. Looking forward to reading all of Mr. Petit's work.

Scott's Bluff

This was another exceptionally great book. Loved all of the action and suspense, but best of all is the wonderful love story. I have now read almost all of your books and look forward to any others out there.

Trina Brooks says

A wonderful frontier story.

A story of a man with a big heart that protects and teaches his family to survive in New frontier. People were more important than things. The cruelty of some over the weaker sex and children. A wonderful theme of a group that becomes a family, with a lot of love and respect.

Rita Wright says

Great Western Love story. C.J. Petit never disappoints.

Lovely Story of lonely people finding each other. A family is formed. The story tells of a women finding a caring, generous man. After being in an abusive relationship.

Mary Haynes says

Good story

I have read 3 books by this author. I enjoy his writing style. I will probably continue to read more of his books. The stories are interesting, with slots of description the western landscape. I find the love stories to be interesting.

Suzanne says

Aaron Hendricks was a widower with a 12 year old son. He owned a successful ranch on the Nebraska plains near Scott's Bluff. Returning to his ranch from a supply trip he was caught in a blizzard. Aaron was prepared as always and continued his trip as the storm began to let up and visibility increased. He was surprised to find a shape on the landscape that did not belong. Long story but he finally made it home to his twelve year old son with a woman with possible frostbite and her two children. Alice was almost twelve Danny was seven. Learning that the woman's husband and the children's stepfather had abandoned them to for in the storm, he and his son set out to make their lives safe and comfortable. Winter was coming and Aaron and Mary learned a lot about each other and focused on making life happy for the children.
