This is the eleventh book in the Thea Stilton series. This books takes the Thea Sisters to Egypt to help out one of their professors over spring break in search of the ancient Treasure of the Sun. But when they arrive the professor is acting odd and then suddenly disappears. Will the girls be able to solve the mystery behind the ancient Treasure of the Sun and rescue their professor before it's too late?

This was a very interesting book about the history of Egypt and the history of many of the Pharaoh's of Egypt. Great read!

This was not a good book. I didn't like it because it was very uninteresting and the fact that they used the word mouse in words like fabulous (it was just annoying.) So I have no regret giving this book a single star. This book would be good for anyone who likes adventure, crime, and some suspense. The book is about five best friends that go on an adventure to Egypt. Along the way their teacher gets appositely lost and so they go on a hunt trying to find him. Soon they find him but he didn't get lost he had gotten kidnapped and became a prisoner then they all did. They were all prisoners because their kidnapper wanted to find the lost treasure and sell it for big money. Read the book to find out the rest but I wouldn't recommend it.

I liked it because there was a treasure hunt.

My third graders love the Geronimo Stilton series and I can see why. They have fun pictures and a plot that is full of adventures. My only issue with the book I read is that it could have used some more character development of the six main female mice. Their characters seem fairly one dimensional and it caused the action-packed book to fall a little flat. All in all though, I will definitely be recommending these books to students who enjoy action, adventure, and mystery.

Off the Egypt this time, the Thea Sisters are trying to find a lost professor and treasures. Discovering Egyptian antiquities and culture, the girls try to save their professor and find the treasure.

Rich text clues, vivid illustrations, informative text boxes make this series both educational and entertaining.

So, apparently I heard something on Amazon about these books not including Israel/Palestine/Whatever it's called on the maps. As a liberal with Jewish heritage (yes, such things happen), I including neither is horrible and offensive. I'd give it negative stars (what would those be? Black holes? White/black dwarves? Neutron stars?) if I could. I love how they go so token (seriously, it's that kind of "let's do multiculturalism not because it's a good thing to do, but because we could get sued" that Toon Makers' proposed Sailor Moon adaptation suffered from) and then completely IGNORE the Middle East. So, yeah. VOID OUT OF TEN.

What an adorable series! I knew who Geronimo Stilton was, of course, but I'd never picked up one of the books. This is a spinoff series featuring side characters from Geronimo's world and it's a FANTASTIC readalike for Collar Cases. I'm so excited to have a target for age range, content, and syntax as we work on our third book.

If you have young readers beginning their independent reading lives, this is an adorable series to try!

Another cute story about the adventures of the "Thea Sisters". A group of girls who learned from Thea that they are all sisters. This time they go to Egypt and help their professor find a treasure and stop treasure hunters from stealing all of this find.

Nicky, Pamela, Paulina, Violet and Colette will get to help their professor to find the treasure under the precious Egypt ground and try not let the bad guys take it.

I really like the vocab she uses. Especially the times when she changes some random words into a "mousie" kind of word, e.g. fabulous = "fabumouse", etc. The riddles that were used were really confusing but interesting :)

I think that the book was great. And that I don't get that Paulina little sister would try to kill them. And that two professors should try to work together and not fight. And the book was great because the "Thea sisters" worked together to find the scarab and help each other to find Professor Sparkle. But who would know that Maria and Dunya was there little sister and a Thea sister. And that the book was called "Geronimo Stilton" "Thea Stilton and the blue scarab hunt" and created by "Thea Stilton" and that is what I read for two weeks. And that Professor Sparkle was underground. And that Maria had a little crew to throw the Thea sisters off a cliff.

Iets beter, en voornamelijk omdat dit boek over een onderwerp gaat die mij interesseert. Anders was het best saai. Ik werd gek van Pam. Kom op zeg wat een aanstellerij. Het einde was net een beetje te over de top voor mij, maar ach. Verder wel een leuk boek met lekker veel feitjes over Egypte.
