Girls with Slingshots, Vol. 5 Danielle Corsetto

For everyone who has fought for their beard. For everyone who loves special-needs kittens. For everyone whose secret crush can't hear them. For everyone who believes that lesbian love can have more than one dimension. For everyone who has felt a calling to be nosy, professionally, in a detective costume. For everyone who thinks their ho-bag friends should all get tested.

This collection of the last black-and-white strips from the webcomic Girls with Slingshots dig up the dirty secrets behind Hazel, Jamie, and their entourage: lesbian love, beard clubs, STD testing, ASL romance, widdle baby kitties, and introducing Jamie the Romance Detective.

Bonus features include pin-ups and sketches, secrets from the GWS script notebooks, instructions on how to throw your own STD party, a list of everything you need to be a Romance Detective, and the first adorable sketches of the kitties.

Not for the faint of heart! But, awww, there's always kitties.

Bert says

Started reading this webcomic in 2014. I like it and sometimes like it a lot, but some characters and story lines are... well, "a bit too much". I mean, the talking cactus who searches for his mustache that has run away, various extra-ordinary cats and kitties,...

Too much silliness in this volume for my tastes: that whole storyline about the kitties just went on and on.

Sara says

It started off as a boredom thing at work, a distraction, but it is hilariously written and extremely smart and so addicting. I couldn't get enough, and over the course of a few weeks I read the entire series!

Sara says

Girls With Slingshots just keeps getting better and better.

Review Feb 2012:

I love this series. It leaves me wanting more and makes me laugh out loud as I read.

Mike Smith says

Another great book from Danielle Corsetto. If you are not a fan of Girls with Slingshots already then you should go read the comic online at girlswithslingshots.com.

Rainey says

Kitties and booze.
