Wanted: Gunsmith Lynn Donovan

Sarah Gillham has no intention of getting married EVER! Then a series of disasters wipe out the men in her hometown of Silverpines, Oregon, including her own dear poppa. With no men left, she and the other women of Silverpines are at the mercy of evil men who try to take advantage of their situation. In desperation, a plan is formed to save the town and poppa's gunsmith shop: advertise for a groom. But Sarah wants a fake groom. A man who will actually be her employee not her husband.

Mason Dekum was a man with no heart left. His died the day his wife burned to death in front of him. Now he wants to get as far away as he can. His father-in-law gives him a gun pattern and orders him to go west and never return. He answers Sarah's ad for a groom, and a plot is hatched to pretend to marry to keep her and her mother safe. For Mason, it's the perfect solution, a fresh start out west without risking losing anyone else he loves. That is until he finds himself having real feelings for his pretend wife.

Will these two let their happy ever after go, out of stubbornness? Or will they reverse their declarations to never marry and follow their hearts? Will Sarah admit Mason is her wanted gunsmith?

Kelly Tyree says

Wanted: Gunsmith is about a nineteen year old girl, Sarah Gillham, who is desperate. The whole town is desperate. Silverpines has had to endure two disasters that killed most of the men in the town. Sarah is doing her best to be the gunsmith but she needs help so she fills out an ad for a mail order husband. She has no intentions of marrying him but she needs help running her father's business.

Mason Dekum is a recent widow who plans to answer the ad to be a mail order husband for Sarah but he has no plans to marry her. He is interested in expanding her gunsmith business. But when Sarah and Mason meet they are caught off guard by their attraction to one another. The two come up with an agreement to "pretend" to be married. As the two work together to expand their business, the fall in love but can they overcome their fears and anxieties and allow themselves to marry one another?

Silverstone series

A wonderful sweet romance I loved the story line Sarah is like a little Annie Oakley. Sarah was so scared she thought if she married a man he would then treat her badly seems her friends told her. Mason was a widower who was married to Wesson's daughter but lost her in tragic circumstances he goes west to marry a women wanting a gunsmith but really they both don't want marriage. The town of Silverpines is still struggling to come to terms with a tragedy that most of there men lost there life's in and the women ordered mail-order Husbands to help rebuild there town. However Sarah and Mason don't want to get married and come up with a plan to pretend that they are husband and wife but things go rather pairshaped and Mason and Sarah both find themselves attracted to each other and the problems begin it's a must read and I can't wait to read the next one.

Reviewed at Historically Romantic

In a small town that has already faced more than its fair share of tragedies two people who never, ever wanted to marry will put on a very good pretend show – right up until the pretend part is no longer true. Wanted: Gunsmith brings Mason to town as a mail order groom who has no intention of marrying, however he is very willing to be a business partner with the woman who needs a gunsmith. Mason also brings with him a bit of gun history which adds some interesting twists to this romance. Sarah has no intention of marrying her “groom”, she’s already decided that she will never marry for in her experience through friends, once the ring goes on the woman’s every freedom is curtailed and she becomes her husband’s property. No way that is happening to Sarah – but she does need to get her father’s gun shop back up and running. Since neither one wants to marry they agree to a pretend event but in reality is a business partnership. They might have fooled the townsfolk, but they haven’t really fooled themselves.

Watching Mason and Sarah move from strangers to reluctant business partners... and then to the strong feelings developing between them was an enjoyable and emotional journey. Add a touch of danger, a blast from Mason’s past and two people falling in love for real and you have an intense romance. Especially when Sarah will not give up her decision to not marry ever – her stubbornness, even against herself, is part of what drives this story.

I enjoyed this story very much, especially the look at couples past and possible couples to come. I had fun with this story and I believe that any Western Historical Romance reader would love Wanted: Gunsmith or this entire Silverpines series.

I read this title through my Kindle Unlimited subscription. This is my personal opinion on this story, a voluntary review of a book I borrowed through my monthly fee paid KU subscription.

I loved it! So many twists and turns to get the unexpected happy ever after! I appreciated the nod to the characters from other books in this series both before and after this one! Many series don't seem to do that well! I'm looking forward to meeting the new Blacksmith, Doc (although he's already made a few medical visits, I want to read his and Hattie's story), and the Innkeeper!

Another great book in the Silverpines series

This book was so good I had a hard time putting it down. Lynn Donovan had me laughing at the things Sarah and Mason did. I highly recommend this book.

Love this book.

What a sweet beautiful series this is, and this book is just another example how talented and hard working these authors are. Both Mason and Sarah, and supporting characters have depth and changes in actions and thought are a natural part of the developed storyline. I love that there is a mix of humor and sorrow in the book, as well as tantalizing hints of concurrent stories of other townspeople. Proof that one doesn't need steam for a great book.

I love how this series isn't all roses and champagne. I like who there are struggles and troubles. I like how the characters, young and old, are relatable and realistic. This series is fantastic. This book, WANTED: GUNSMITH is like this. The characters were great! I like that the author had strong yet realistic heroines. This is another in this series that is a stand alone, yet great in the series. I like how this book looks into other characters that other authors have written.

This one is a keeper!

I've never read Lynn's books before now, but I'm pleased to report that she has a clear, detailed and decisive writing style that reads like a dream. Now onto the next Silverpines!

Very good read

I enjoyed this book! I have enjoyed all of the books in this series so far! Mason went west to be a gunsmith and a married man. But he didn't want to get married again after his wife Lucy's death he felt he would always love Lucy. Sarah didn't want to get married either, she had a plan. They would make it look like they got married but wouldn't share a bedroom only a home her momma was there so she didn't see a problem. But neither one of them planned on falling in love. Can Mason convince Sarah to marry him? She swore she would never marry. But everyone soon finds out they aren't really married and ooh la la the tongues start wagging. Mason wants to marry Sarah in the worst way but she said NO! Can he get her to change her mind? You will have to read this book to find out! I highly recommend this book!

Excellent

As Silverpines struggles to rebuild itself and protect itself from unsavory men women have taken matters into their own hands to find suitable husbands to help them rebuild out heroine needs someone to help her but doesn't want to ever get married. Mason is expecting to marry on arrival but really doesn't want to she proposes an arrangement that suits them both life has a way of upsetting even the best plans . I really enjoyed this book it has two aptly suited characters a really good plot and a few surprises along the way and an ending with some surprises too. Looking forward to the next book in the series

Sheryl Robert says

it is crazy how two people who did not want to get married, finally realize they want to marry. Smith and Wesson play a vital role in the story. It is amazing how there are twists and turns that bring about such realizations. I loved the plot as once again we are at the scene of Silverpines after the two devastating earthquakes. This can be a stand a lone book as well as read as the series.

Takes you through great sadness to amazing joy.

This book is written like you are right with the town in deep sadness but as you read along you can see and feel a positive change is happening.

A great story that you do not want to miss out on

Debbie says

A match made out of necessity.

Sarah didn't want to get married. Mason had his reasons too. A plot that seems to get uncovered at the wrong time causes them grief. Read to learn what happens between 2 stubborn people.

Sandra White says

A Good Man to the rescue!

Tragedy struck both Sarah and Mason at about the same time. She lost her beloved poppa, and he lost his precious wife. Neither wanted to marry, but they desperately needed each other.

When another near tragedy forced them to face the truth, that's when the problems began.

This book is a lovely story that shows the heart can love again after tragic loss. Time can heal the wounds and cure the melancholy. God's grace is shown in everything Mason does. This book is a must read!
