Midnight Screeches M.D. Lee

Inspired by an actual B-52 plane crash site deep in the Maine woods, author M.D. Lee takes young readers on a thrill-ride mystery adventure. Once again, in the second installment of his adventure series, young Fisher Shoemaker finds himself in a situation he can't explain. Survival camping on the back side of Black Creek Mountain, he and his buddy stumble upon a plane wreck, from long ago, that had been carrying Top Secret cargo. But the cargo is gone. During the night they hear eerie screeching sounds coming from the darkness of the woods. They try to convince themselves it's nothing. But it's not. Whatever made the unearthly screeching will find them. To escape is critical.

Good follow up. This was well written and enjoyable. It's in a series but can be read as a stand alone story.

First, I'd like to thank the author and Goodreads since I won this book in a giveaway on the website.

The story is about a young boy, Fisher Shoemaker, who discovers something weird in the woods while at a survival camp. Don't ask me why, but I was sure it would be a horror story. Maybe it's because of these few lines at the end of the blurb: 'They try to convince themselves it's nothing. But it's not. Whatever made the unearthly screeching will find them. To escape is critical.' So I might as well set things straight right away; if you're looking for nightmares, or even just goose bumps, look away. While this is a fun read, it's definitely not horror.

One of the things I enjoyed about the story is that even if our three friends, Fisher, Sara, and Hingy are young teenagers, they are not stupid. Things don't happen because of mistakes they make, so the whole thing feels natural. I would highly recommend this book to middle grade children, but parents should like it too.

'Midnight Screeches' is a second installment in a series but I didn't read the first and I didn't feel as if I was missing something, so don't let that stop you from reading it.

I also want to mention that I love the cover. It's what got me to look at the blurb.
