This is the day the Lord has made.

A butterfly floats through the sun and the shade,

while dragonflies flit past the flowers and trees and grasshoppers hop in the soft morning breeze.

The World Is Awake, A Celebration of Everyday Blessings, written by Emmy Award winner and ABC News correspondent Linsey Davis with Joseph Bottum, is a lyrical, rhyming story for young children intended to make them feel safe and joyful, cradled in the hands of God. Paired with bright and engaging illustrations by Lucy Fleming, this book inspires children to be thankful for all of God's blessings that surround us in our daily lives. From the nature in our own backyard to the animals at the zoo, The World Is Awake is a celebration of God's wonderful world.

LizzyBerry says

Sweet book with cute illustrations. The children experience a fun day being outside and visiting the zoo with their family as they thank God for blessings. May consider it for my J200s.

Another one that I think I liked a little more than MK, but she might like it when she gets a little older.

Kalynda says

With bright and cheery illustrations you can journey along with two young siblings as they explore the beauty right outside their window and in their own town (like at the zoo). This story, with its religious tone, is filled with gratitude and wonder.
