After reading some of Junji Ito's works I can say with all honesty that Souichi is for me his best character, and his collection one of the best from Ito. And yes, Souichi's stories aren't the most scary but for me they are the most perturbing and annoying (in a good and natural way), Ito found a way of melting horror and comedy in a very subtle way that doesn't feel awkward to the readers, and made us feel endearment for a kid whose hobby is to practice dark magick and make voodoo dolls of his family members (happens to me every sunday).

So, for anyone that wants some horror but also some light-fun reading, here you go.
