Too many loose ends left unaddressed at the end of this one.

This fourth installment in the Funeral Crashing series was another home run for Milda Harris! I enjoyed it immensely despite the frustration I had because of the main character, Kait. Kait and Ethan are definitely in love, but they both are learning what it really means to be in a relationship. Ethan voices his worries and concerns to Kait about her murder solving and sleuthing, but her passion for finding solutions and answers has not changed. In the midst of all these issues, Troy has a new case against him and Kait cannot stay away from it. Troy definitely has feelings for Kait, so he uses his case as a chance to get close to her. Kait drove me insane in this book! She doesn't have a mother figure in her life to discuss dating and relationships, so she has much growing up to do. The writing was very solid. I could not put the book down! I would love to see this series turned into a television show! Here's hoping...

I received this book through the author as a read to review and I'm so grateful to her! :D I actually started this book at 3 am, the night she gave it to me. I thought I'd have enough restraint to wait to read it the next day but Alas, I did not. I finished the book around 4 and just could not sleep after reading it 3. I'm also really sorry it took me so long to get down to writing the review, I've just had so much going on :/ I have to say thought that Adventures in Homicide and Heartbreak Milda Harris this might have been my least favourite of the funeral crashing series but that's only because of what happens in the book, emphasis on the heartbreak :/ But other than that, this book is a MUST read for those who have read the others and love amateur young adult detective series. Kait really pissed me off in this book. Nosiness is one of my pet peeves so I think that's why it irritated me. Like why couldn't she just leave things well enough alone if she knew it was going to affect things with her and Ethan? It was so stupid. I felt like punching her a few times, not going to lie. I get that it's ingrained in her but she should be more tactful and not so forceful when going about doing her sleuthing. Overall, I did enjoy the book but just not what happens in it. I really hope everything works out in the next book. I can barely wait for it! Milda Harris is definitely one of my fave authors, her books resonate and are what realistic fiction is all about.

Teenage Detectives Continue

Another great story, with the same characters with a little different plot. Great flow of the storyline. Can't wait for the next in the series.

The first chapters of this book until I got to the last few pages of chapter 10 was entertaining. Then you get to the last few pages of chapter 10 and it BLOWS UP from there!! You know it is a good read when you end up talking to the book lol!! Like telling Kait how dumb she is when she give Ethan her (Read the to know what is chapter 10) at the lunch table at work!! I could not put this book down after it blew up with everything falling apart and it just keeps going down hill from there!! What a rollercoaster.

SUMMARY (60 words or less)

Still no audio. Anywho, I finished this paperback I've had for years and only picked up now. I just felt like the characters were running around without purpose even though there was "purpose". I just didn't feel like we got anywhere from the last book.

Am I the only one who wants Kait to go out with Troy? I liked him from the start and felt his relationship with Ariel was to rebound from Kait. I like Ethan but hate that he can't support Kait and open up to her. Too many loose ends in this book that hopefully get remedied in the next book. I want the next book ASAP!

Adventures in Homicide and Heartbreak is the 4th book in the "Adventures in" series and is best of the series yet! #4 finds Kait falling even more in love with Ethan as the days go by. She's in love and has started her unpaid internship at the police station working for Detective Dixon a couple of days a week, what more could a girl ask for! Life is Perfect!

Then one day at the station Kait overhears yelling in the interrogation room and decides to try and get a better view of whose inside. Much to her surprise it's someone she knows. Troy, her ex-bff Ariel's boyfriend. Kait freaks out and calls Ariel, which starts a snowball effect of bad things.

Still Kait can't leave a friend in need and agrees to investigate the case with Troy, even though it makes Ethan very unhappy. I love when Troy tells Kait, "You're driven to solve mysteries. Nobody should make you feel ashamed of that."

This book has even more mystery, ups and downs and heartbreak than any of the previous books. I can't wait to see what new adventures Kait will get into in the next book with Suzie and Kyle in Paris, The City of Love!
